Ohio Sesquicentennial Commission

A golden bronze medallion that commemorates the Ohio Sesquicentennial Year has been placed on sale all over the state by the Ohio Sesquicentennial Commission.

Designed by the Ohio sculptor, Edwin F. Frey, professor in the school of Fine and Applied Arts of Ohio State University, it was struck by the Medallion Art Company of New York.

The obverse, or face, of the medallion suggests the state's regard for practical education. This is symbolized by three allegorical figures, the three R's—reading, 'ritin,' and 'rithmetic—and a child. The obverse also notes the state's staple activities farming, manufacturing, mining, and merchandising.

The reverse presents nine "pictorial remarks"—the state capital, buckeye and honey bee, corn horn of plenty, aviation, grapes, glass and pottery, Serpent Mound, and steel.

The Ohio Bankers' Association, the Association of Small Loan Companies, and the Ohio Savings and Loan League have been asked by the Commission to serve as major distributors of the medallions. The medallion is also available in regular retail outlets where the sign advertising it is displayed, and at the Ohio State Museum, Columbus 10.

The price, sales tax included, is two dollars and fifty cents. Ten thousand medallions have been struck, and the Commission expects it will become a collector's item of future years.
