TRIESTE

By A. J. P. TAYLOR
Fellow of Magdalen College,
Oxford

When Trieste was in Italian hands, it was used as a political weapon to divide central Europe and to compel Austria and Hungary to follow a policy hostile to Czechoslovakia and Hungary. If Trieste were in Yugoslav hands, it would also be used as a political weapon, but to compel Austria and Hungary to cooperate with Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

This would be regretted only by the friends of Archduke Otto of Habsburg and of Admiral Horthy, and it is difficult to believe that they are deserving of sympathy.

There remains the national question. Would not the Yugoslavs inflict on the Italian inhabitants which the Italians have inflicted on the Slovenes and Croats?

There are strong grounds for believing that they would not.

In the first place, Yugoslavia is not, as Italy is, a national state. It is a federal state, containing at least five distinct nationalities, and comprising six federated units. The present Yugoslavia has far more in common with the old non-national Habsburg Empire than with a national state such as Italy; and, though there are likely to be national disputes in the future—as there should be in any healthy country—no one nationality will predominate. Besides, the Slovenes are less than two millions, of a total Yugoslav population of 16 millions, so even the idea of a Slovene domination is out of the question.

But there is a second, and more decisive, argument. The Italian majority in Trieste is artificial. It could be maintained only by denying to the Slovenes their national rights, and when in the old days of the Habsburg empire the Slovenes enjoyed something like fair play, the Italian majority was dwindling rapidly. The Italians had to close the Slovene schools in order to keep their position. The Slovenes will only have to open their schools in order to start catching up again. It will not be necessary for them to close the Italian schools.

Once the Slovenes are allowed to use their own language in the law courts and public offices, once they can send their children to Slovene schools, once Slovene books and newspapers can circulate freely, thousands of them will revert themselves to their nationality of origin. Moreover, when Trieste again becomes a great port—which it can never be under Italy—there will be a great demand for labor, and Slovenes will crowd in from the neighboring countryside.

The Slovenes will become a majority, probably within a generation; but they will become the majority by a natural process. To do so they will not need to employ the weapon of national persecution. This process has taken place, or is taking place, in every town of Eastern Europe; it can take place just as easily in Trieste.

The reader will observe that I have conducted this argument on the most cynical basis. I have not attempted to make out that the Italians are, by nature, intolerant and chauvinistic or that the Slovenes are, by nature, tolerant and pacific. Though I think that the evidence would justify such an attempt, we must apply the same measure to both sides. Either we assume (as Italian propagandists do) that the Yugoslavs will remain bellicose and intolerant—in which case we must assume the same of the Italians.

Or we assume, as Italian propagandists do, that the new Italy will behave in an entirely different way from the old—in which case we must assume the same of the Yugoslavs.

But it is an outrageous assumption to suppose that the Yugoslavs, who have been our allies, will possess all the vices of the old Italy; and that the Italians, who have been our enemies, will possess more virtues than any people has ever shown.

If both nations remain in the future what they have been in the past then Trieste should be Yugoslav, for the Italians have shown themselves unfit to rule over Slovenes, whereas the Yugoslavs are likely to treat the Italian minority considerably, if only as a matter of self-interest.

If both nations live up to the fine promises of the present, then Trieste should be Yugoslav; since an Italy which had genuinely abandoned imperialist ambitions would not desire to retain Trieste, and the Italians in Trieste would be more prosperous under Yugoslav rule than if they remained in Italy.

If the Italians live up to all their fine promises and the Yugoslavs to none of theirs—then and then only, Trieste should indeed be Italian—but Malta, Tobruk and Addis Ababa should be Italian as well.

The liberal press in England has been shocked that the Yugoslavs should have insisted on liberated Trieste themselves, instead of waiting for the decision of a peace conference; from this the worst conclusions are drawn.

A check for this amount was turned over to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis on March 7, 1946.

Your committee believes that the results were beyond our expectations and we certainly are grateful to every one who supported this cause.

We are especially grateful to the children of St. Vitus School who contributed $120.00; to the North American Bank for their $25.00 contribution and to Mr. Anton Grdina, Sr. for his $25.00 donation. We wish to thank the Bond Drive Committee, Dr. V. Opaskar, to Oblak Furniture, Louis Erste for their donations.

The dance and campaign would never have succeeded if it was not for the splendid help and cooperation we received from the SDZ and SNPJ lodges and for the many individuals who gave of their time and effort before the dance and during the dance. We especially want to thank Miss Josephine Prince, Mr. Frank Jaksic, Jr., Mr. Peter Popovic, Sr., Mr. Anton Grdina, Sr., Miss Eleanor Karlinger, Mr. John Centa, Mr. Chas. Vrtovnik, Mr. Jos. ## KOVACIC ENDORSED BY PROGRESSIVE DEMS

J. F. Fifolt

Many of you have probably read in the Cleveland papers about the formation of the Progressive Democratic organization of Cuyahoga County. Their meetings are held weekly at Hotel Hollenden under the chairmanship of Councilman Edward Pucel.

The platform that this group stands for is given you below. Among the endorsements it will be noted the name of our Councilman Edward Kovacic, who is running for County Commissioner. We know that he as well as the others listed deserve your support.

The Progressive Democrats of Cuyahoga County through Edward L. Pucel, Chairman, today announced their slate of endorsed candidates for the May 7th Primary Election.

Chairman Pucel stated that the PROGRESSIVE DEMOCRATS are an organization dedicated to the practical application of DEMOCRACY within the Democratic Party of Cuyahoga County, rebelling against the dictatorial and undemocratic methods exercised now by the party leaders as well as during the war period when our boys were fighting against totalitarians and dictators on all of the battle fronts of the world—suffering many sacrifices, wounds, and death that democracy will continue to be a real living instrument of government, especially here in the United States of America. We are against the appointment of Ward Leaders by the County Chairman and in line with sound democratic process actively support the election of Ward Leaders and Party Officials including the County Chairman by secret ballot by the duly elected members of the County Central Committee (Precinct Committeemen.)

A political party is an instrument of the people and when it does not operate democratically IT DOES NOT OPERATE FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE COMMUNITY OR THE PARTY—FOR THE INTEREST OF BOTH MUST OPERATE TO THE MAJORITY BENEFIT OF ALL.

The following candidates have been endorsed as Americans who will carry forward the principles of the Democratic Party for the majority benefit of our community and nation. They are dedicated to "DEMOCRATIC PROGRESS ON THE MARCH."

Invisible Lenses Gaining Popularity

Dr. L. A. Starce, 6411 St. Clair Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, has just recently returned from Columbus, Ohio, where he took a post-graduate course in the fitting and prescribing of invisible contact lenses. These unbreakable lenses, which are made of plastic, fit invisibly over the eyeball and correct errors of vision.

Dr. William Feinbloom of New York, inventor of the invisible spectacles which can be fitted scientifically to any eye, conducted the course of instruction. The practical application of these contact lenses was demonstrated in a special clinic. Dr. Feinbloom, Research Fellow at Columbia University, Fellow of the American Academy of Optometry, is also the inventor of the telescopic spectacles, micro-vision spectacles and other devices all of which have aided thousands of near blind throughout the world. He is the pioneer in this country in the fitting and designing of contact lenses and has made outstanding contributions in this field.

Developed primarily to overcome visual difficulties caused by keratoconus and scarred corneas, contact lenses are now worn by stage, screen and concert stars, athletics, business men and others who disdain glasses but must wear some corrective optical device. Contact lenses are also a boon to many who cannot be aided by ordinary

Mass Meeting

The Progressive Democrats of Cuyahoga County invite the public to the primary election campaign open mass meeting, to be held at the Slovenian Hall, 6417 St. Clair Avenue tonight, April 26th, at 8 p. m. The program will consist of musical and vocal selections and speeches by various candidates and officers of the recently formed organization sponsored by the Progressive Democrats of Cuyahoga County.

spectacles but who are helped immeasurably by invisible glasses. The lens is worn in intimate contact with the eyeball with only a layer of water between the lens and the cornea. Thus the lens in effect forms an artificial cornea and its optical power corrects errors of vision.

This type of lens is meeting growing demands to replace spectacles. It is invisible, non-shatterable, the plastic does not irritate the tissues of the eye and the lenses can be worn for long periods of time.

"Not a single case of injury to the eyes due to the wearing of contact lenses has ever been reported since they first came into use in 1910," Dr. Starce stated, adding, "There are, however, many cases where contact lenses have actually prevented an injury to the eye when an accident occurred."

These lenses are invisible, comfortable, shatter proof and unbreakable—therefore safe to wear. Contact lenses are a boon to many who cannot be aided by ordinary spectacles but are helped immeasurably by these invisible glasses.

The wearer of these glasses need no longer be made to feel self-conscious due to unattractive appearance of thick, heavy spectacles.

"Slovenija junaška, svobodna bodeš ti!"

Almost without exception, to express a personal opinion, every Slovene—"American born" or otherwise, can interpret the quotation above—can transpose into literal English those few words, "Heroic Slovenia, You will be free!" But how many of us can begin to realize the deep determination and the miserable suffering which poured through the hearts of those who chose to fight for the freedom of their country, for their homes, for ALL their people?

Although many of those united in this gigantic life-struggle against such criminal aggression and nostalgic betrayal as was encountered, did not survive to enjoy the fulfillment of their bitterly won freedom, there is a monument to their memory which will never die—a monument, not of stone, but of songs; such a memorial as even the most evil of oppressors cannot eradicate from the unfathomable mystery of human reason—the human mind.

These melodies are no classic masterpieces, fashioned in the minds of scholars of music, rather, they are simple emotions, formed in simple hearts, and pulsating through the life-blood to the minds of simple folks.

Dedicated to the promotion of Slovene music and culture here in Cleveland is our well-known chorus, ZARJA. In all its thirty years of existence, our chorus has never experienced more pride and usefulness than now—being in the position to once more give our Slovenes the songs their own flesh and blood composed and sang—to final Victory. Our next offering is dated: Sunday, April 28—Slovenian National Home, St. Clair Ave. The curtain fee, is seventy-five cents; the Johnny Pecon strains will sound to the tune of sixty cents. Refreshments? Come—See.

Also, a word about the proceeds: We have not yet abolished our policy of dropping into the fund for Yugoslav Relief our semi-annual contribution. In this way, ALL OF YOU enjoying yourselves with us this Sunday, will receive double pleasure in sharing with our many unfortunates overseas.

Summarizing in brief the remainder of the program:—A light comic operetta, "Pri zlatem sodčku" (need I translate?) with a cast including a widow, Marta (Milka Kokal) who wishes to marry her daughter, Marica (Josephine Turk) to someone other than Pavel (Tony Perusek), whom Marica loves. Obstruction to the proposed bargain is the wealthy widower, inn-keeper, and uncle of Pavel, named Lužar (Frank Klemenčič) who proposes marriage to the widow and is accepted. As master over both women, his consent to the marriage of Pavel and Marica is readily obtained, and joy prevails. Antics and laughs by Trček, a shoemaker (Frank Kokal) who casts his eye upon the cook at the inn, Katra (Ann Kokal) and is immediately thrust deep into the entrails of Cupid. Needless to say, the pair reaches a mutual understanding, 'mid a heap o' confusion.

The chorus will do its part in mixed arrangements and a male chorus, duets, solos, a trio—all have their places, as has also our whistler, Joe Tekavec. Our Choirmaster is Joseph V. Krabec, to whom we extend our deepest sympathies over his re-

Norwood Community Council

J. F. Fifolt

The March meeting of the Norwood Community Council was held in the lower hall of the Slovenian National Home, the last Thursday of the month.

One of the largest crowds we have had for sometime was in attendance to listen to Mr. John Howard, Director of the City Planning Commission, Councilman E. Kovacic, 23rd Ward, Mr. Anton Grdina, Sr., and the writer, discuss in a preliminary way, the complete rezoning of the area from E. 55th to E. 79th, from the north of St. Clair to the south side of Superior.

Mr. Howard had maps showing the present zoning restrictions in this area and a comparable one showing the proposed zoning. In brief, the zoning ordinance which will be prepared and introduced in Council will cover the upgrading of restrictions in the area. The area on the north side of St. Clair, on the South side, on the East side of E. 79th; the West side of E. 55th and the north side of Superior, will in the main be for retail business.

Back of the retail section on the North side of St. Clair, with the exception of the area devastated by the fire, which is Residential, will be zoned for First Industrial. The property enclosed by the retail boundaries, now zoned for apartment houses will with a few exceptions be rezoned for Residential. It is expected that a few spots will remain zoned for apartment houses and retail business.

When one speaks of rezoning it should be remembered that what is in the area at the present time remains and cannot be effected.

The proposed rezoning will effect every property owner in this area, churches, schools and businesses, maybe not in your life time but in the life time of your children or those that will follow. It is of the utmost importance that you and your children therefore, become interested in what the Norwood Community Council is doing, with the fine cooperation of Director Howard and Councilman Kovacic.

The Norwood Community Council meetings are held the last Thursday of the month at the Slovenian National Home, E. 65th and St. Clair Ave.

We expect very shortly to have in the windows of the S. D. Z., E. 64th and St. Clair, maps showing the present and proposed changes.

YOUR SAFETY IS MY BUSINESS

by Frank D. Celebrezze, Director Department of Public Safety

Last week we mentioned the fatal foolishness connected with using gasoline in the home for dry cleaning purposes. Now we want to remind you that there is also danger present when gasoline is used to clean the motor or other parts of your automobile.

On the last day of March a man was cleaning the motor of his truck in the garage at the rear of his west side home. A spark, either static or from the motor, ignited a glove he was wearing. He tossed the burning glove out the open door and it landed on the back seat of his pleasure car. He managed to extinguish the fire but the upholstery was badly damaged.

Just last Saturday, another West Sider received painful burns on his hands and face when a spark ignited gasoline he was using to clean the motor of his automobile in the garage at the rear of his home.

Accidents similar to these many of them are not reported. It is a commendable practice to keep your car and the motor free from dirt and grease; in fact by doing so you are eliminating a fire hazard. However use every precautionary means at your disposal.

Under no circumstances should you smoke in the presence of gasoline or gasoline fumes. Respect your garage as the farmer does his barn; by this we mean, do not tolerate smoking in the garage at any time.

Yugoslav Fund For Children's Hospital

N. Y., N. Y.—A new hospital, named after President Roosevelt in commemoration of the first year of his death will be built by the Yugoslav government and equipped through funds raised by the American Committee for Yugoslav Relief.

The Franklin Delano Roosevelt Memorial Hospital is one of five to be equipped through funds raised by the Committee, Mr. Balokovic said, and will include, at a cost of $200,000, an eye, ear, nose and throat clinic, orthopedic and dental clinics, general examination and surgical equipment, complete operation facilities and children's wards.

The equipment for one of the other four hospitals, all of which will specialize in the cure of tuberculosis, has already been purchased. Mr. Balokovic announced, adding that there are 200,000 Yugoslav children and adults suffering from various forms of tuberculosis.

"This hospital will bear the name of a great and honored American who, like nearly two million Yugoslavs, gave his life in the fight against our common enemy," said Mr. Balokovic. "Under the leadership of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, strong bonds of friendship were forged between America and Yugoslavia during the terrible war years. The permanence and development of this friendship will depend, in great measure, on the younger generation of both nations.

"But in Yugoslavia," Mr. Balokovic continued, "nearly a million and a half children need medical care; half a million have been orphaned. From reports issued recently by the Yugoslav Red Cross, the death rate of children aged two to five has increased 40 per cent; children from six to ten, 60 per cent. Of twelve thousand children who have bone tuberculosis, only six hundred are being cared for."

The 5 hospitals, Mr. Balokovic added, represent only part of a $5,000,000 health program of the American Committee for Yugoslav Relief for forty mobile clinics, four hundred doctor's jeeps, forty children's homes, twelve children's clinics, and research and laboratory equipment for three medical schools. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is National Honorary Chairman of the Committee.

India nears the final showdown for independence. In New Delhi, the British meet with India's leaders for what has been called their most important diplomatic effort of the century.

Trouble in Trieste, creates another crisis in Europe. Italians and Yugoslavs stage wild demonstrations over the claim to the seaport city. British-trained Italian police prevent the factions from clashing and disperse the mobs.

ACCIDENTS AT DUSK

Here in Cleveland as many as four out of every five traffic fatalities occur during the hours of darkness when traffic is comparatively light. Both drivers and walkers are less alert at the end of the day but in the main drivers simply do not see pedestrians soon enough to avoid hitting them. The fault lies sometimes with the driver; just as often with the walker.

Few pedestrians realize how difficult it is for approaching drivers to see them during dusk and darkness. If the walker is wearing dark clothing—less than five per cent of the light which falls on him reflects back to the driver.

Drivers and walkers must collaborate on a program to help each other. The driver must remember that few pedestrians realize how comparatively invisible they are at night. Therefore, let your driving compensate for this fact. Double your caution at nightfall. Triple your caution on unlighted residential streets. Quadruple your caution in bad weather. Keep your windshield clean. Check your windshield wiper frequently. Keep your headlights at top efficiency.

Pedestrians—never depend upon the driver's ability to see you at night. Wear something white—carry something white—a handkerchief or a newspaper. Cross streets at controlled intersections whenever possible. Walk with the signal in your favor and use the crosswalks which have been provided to help you. Learn to judge the speed of an approaching car. Remember that absentmindedness is an important cause of pedestrian death and keep your mind on SAFE WALKING!
