"Talking Boat", Other "Firsts" at Mid-America Boat Show

"Mazie, the Talking Boat" will be among "stars" of the Mid-America Boat Show Jan. 16-24 Cleveland Public Hall telling Mid-western audiences her sad story for the first time.

Other fresh attractions at the five-acre boat and water sports exposition will include the revolutionary craft which "brings the jet age to boating" and a never-before-attempted demonstration of waterskiing — on dry land.

"Firsts" galore are in store for visitors to the nine-day event, along with displays of 1960 models of 300 boats and all major outboard and inboard engines and hundreds of marine and watersports accessories.

"Mazie, the Talking Boat," from Cleveland Chapter of the American Red Cross, is a dilapidated mess. All 18 feet of her is unpolished, battered. There is a gaping hole in her starboard bow.

Also performing in the Indoor Harbor area of the Boat Show will be watersports stars. Members of the Cleveland and West Shore Water Ski Clubs will demonstrate their skill, with waxed skis on a tawed floor surface.

First showing anywhere of the Sealander, a novel craft which has wheeled struts of aircraft aluminum for trailing on the highway.

First exhibition of the Buehler Turbocraft, rudderless and propellerless, which is hurled through the water and steered by a powerful jet of water.

First public distribution of official digests of Ohio's new boating laws, from the Watercraft Division, Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

First exhibition of the Kleeco Floating Boat House, 20-foot all-steel boat house which floats on steel pontoons and protects small craft moored inside.

Show hours are: Saturdays (Jan. 16 and 23) — Noon to 11 p.m.; Sundays (Jan. 17 and 24) — Noon to 8 p.m.; Weekdays — 4 to 11 p.m. Advance tickets are 75 cents. General Admission is $1.25.

The First Responsibility

Much has been said about the responsibilities of business and industry — to employees, stockholders and the community. But in analyzing all of these responsibilities the head of a major chain food store company concludes that, "We have a primary responsibility . . . which transcends all of our other responsibilities . . . the greatest responsibility of the food distributors . . . or any other businessman for that matter . . . is to make a profit . . . If we don't make a profit, we surely can't do much about fulfilling our other responsibilities."

"Yet, for almost thirty years business has been damned time and again for doing the very thing it is supposed to be doing — making a profit!" Never were truer words spoken. For longer than most of us can remember self-styled "liberals" of every political stripe have sought to get on the good side of the people by crusading against profits.

Retail distributors of every kind, chain, independent, department stores, mail order houses — operate on a very thin margin of profit per dollar of sales. They depend upon huge volume for the profits so essential to the survival of their businesses. The jobs of hundreds of thousands of people depend upon those thin margins of profit.

Profits are indeed the first responsibility of any enterprise.

Reporting from Washington

FRANK P. BOLTON • Congressman, 22nd District, Ohio

BUSY DAYS AHEAD! Next week—January 6th—Members of the House and Senate will convene in Washington for the opening of the second session of the 86th Congress which promises to be one of the busiest in history. Much work must be accomplished before the big national political conventions which start July 11th. If it does nothing else, Congress can keep itself busy during the coming months dealing with a host of legislative deadlines. The deadlines involve laws which have fixed expiration dates in 1960. The first deadline falls on January 31 when the unemployment compensation program for Korean War veterans expires. The next big deadline will be June 30th when a long list of laws expire including: the Mutual Security Program; authority for loans and grants for hospital construction under the Hill-Burton Act; wartime excise and corporate tax rates; authorization for urban renewal programs under the National Housing Act; and the President's emergency powers under the Defense Production Act to fix priorities, allocate strategic materials and expand industrial capacity. In addition, all appropriation bills should be passed by this date since the new fiscal year begins July 1. The Administration's legislative program will be outlined when the President delivers his State of the Union message shortly after Congress reconvenes. Later his Budget Message will spell out the proposed legislation in detail as well as give the estimated cost of our domestic, foreign and defense programs. Other Presidential messages will follow on such issues as civil rights, health and welfare matters, mutual security, a new farm program etc. All of this points up the fact that the months ahead are going to be extremely busy and interesting ones!

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT IN THE NATIONAL PARKS

Each spring I receive a number of inquiries from high school and college students regarding the possibility of summer employment in the National Parks. Many times the request is received too late after all job vacancies are filled. I urge all interested students to write me at 450 House Office Building, Washington 25, D. C., as soon as possible. The National Park Service will begin accepting applications for summer employment in January. Usually all jobs are filled by March. Naturally, the student who has his application in early stands the best chance of obtaining a job at the National Park of his choice. I will be most happy to send additional information to those who so desire.

WAR ORPHANS EDUCATION

The Veterans Administration estimates that approximately one-third of the eligible young people are failing to take advantage of the War Orphans Education Act due to three major misconceptions with respect to the law: (1) Many of the eligible young people fail to think of themselves as orphans while one parent is still living. However, the law regards the children of a parent who died from a war-time service-connected injury or illness as orphans, even with the other parent alive. (2) Eligible children who have married often consider themselves no longer eligible for the educational privileges, yet marriage has no bearing upon eligibility under the War Orphans Education Act. (3) Some eligible children believe that they may pursue training only at the college level under this law. The V.A. points out that institutional training may be pursued for various occupations in the vocational and technical fields. Moreover, an otherwise eligible orphan who serves in the Armed Forces for a period preceding his 23rd birthday may still take advantage of the provisions of the War Orphans Education Act within five years after his first release or discharge and prior to his 31st birthday.

Big Brother Week January 10-17

Boys will be boys, but they won't become worthwhile men without some help.

A group recognizing this axiom, and supplying that help here in Cleveland and in communities throughout the country, this week celebrates its 56th anniversary.

It's the Big Brothers, whose only link with its namesake in that grim novel of the future is the title.

Mission of these volunteers is to provide male guidance for those youngsters whose development is causing concern to their communities.

The problems of these boys have been traced to the lack of guidance from a father or older brother, either because non exist, or those around have failed.

Locally, more than 200 BB's are working through institutions and agencies to offer an "arm around the shoulder," as the group's famous poster symbolizes.

They are organized into three groups, associated with major religious faiths: Protestant, Catholic and Jewish.

The Protestant group is affiliated with the Cleveland Area Church Federation, the Catholics with the local diocese and the Jewish BB's operate mostly out of Bellefaire, the treatment center for disturbed youngsters.

And what do these Big Brothers, of every age and walk of life, do to help these "problem youngsters"?

They take them to a baseball game. Spend an afternoon with them working on a model plane. Include the boy in Sunday picnic plans of the Big Brother's family.

A simple enough "therapy," but one which psychologists and sociologists are increasingly urging is vital for the youngster whose immediate family lacks a strong male influence.

Highlight of the local observance for Big Brother week is a meeting Thursday evening, January 14, at the Hotel Tudor Arms of Big Brothers from all three groups.

Speaker for the affair, which begins at 8, is Nathan Cohen, dean of the School of Social Sciences at Western Reserve University.

Mrs. James Major and Mrs. Daniel Pavsek, chairmen, will give a final report on the Parent Teacher Unit dance, which will be held on Jan. 30th in the Parish Hall. Tickets for the dance may be purchased from either Mrs. Major or Mrs. Pavsek.
Refreshments will be served immediately following the meeting.
Mrs. John Trepal, Cor. Sec., PO 1-0065.
